

ANBAS is examining functions of oral and intestinal administration of substances including food stuffs, olfactory stimulation of aroma oils and their components, and skin application of substances by determining changes in activities of autonomic nerves of organs and tissues using electrophysiological method.

(This technique was developed by Akira Nijima, Professor Emeritus, Niigata University)